

The Journal Moving to an Adult State

Euroasian Journal of Hepato-Gastroenterology (EJOHG) started its journey to provide an avenue for scientific publication in the related fields mainly, but not exclusively, for the authors of developing countries in 2011. When the journal achieved uninterrupted publication for one decade, the COVID-19 pandemic devastated the entire world, including our different future endeavors. Although the impacts of COVID-19 are going on, the journal and the editors are planning to take several new initiatives to improve the journal. These include an increase in the number of issues per year. Also, there is a requirement to move forward with more international inputs. More articles will be invited and published beyond the boundaries of the Euroasian region. We are also contacting other related organizations to receive more impacted scientific articles. In 2022, the journal published an issue dedicated to fatty liver and associated complications. This type of initiative will also be taken this year and possibly each year. This mammoth volume of work will be maintained by expanding the editorial board and with the publisher's support.
