

The Euroasian Journal of Hepato-Gastroenterology (EJOHG), a mouthpiece of the scientific community of the developing and resource-constrained countries of Asia and Europe was formulated in 2011 to disseminate scientific knowledge of physicians and allied people of certain fields. The initial duty of the journal was to attract a group of authors so that they submit their articles to this unknown journal. Thus, the journal contained 7 to 8 articles in the early part of the 2010s and 2020. The present issue of the journal will be published with more than 20 articles and several other articles are waiting for publication in the next issues. Credible and qualitative articles are also been submitted to the journal.

We are coming up with several new declarations about the journal in 2025. The issues per year will be increased. The online publication system will be vitalized. The duration between submission of an article to an initial decision regarding REVIEW or ACCEPTANCE or REJECTION will be provided within a week. The DSAHBORAD of the journal will meet the needs of the authors.

The journal has come to stay and will develop in the future, irrespective of personal, social and other complexities. The process will be moving forward. At this juncture, I like to thanks all associated with the journals, especially the authors and the readers. I also hope that they will continue to support the journal so that it can sand the realities and requirements of the second quarter of the 21st century.
